PRE-MATCH REPORT

Cruz Azul - Vancouver Whitecaps
FC

1. Opta Facts

- Cruz Azul have won seven of their eight home matches against MLS opponents in the modern era of the Concacaf Champions Cup (D1), though the lone draw was against a Canadian team, a 0–0 against Toronto FC in the group stage in September 2010.
- Cruz Azul have lost only two of their 38 home matches since the beginning of the current format of the Concacaf Champions Cup in 2008 (W29, D7, L2), with both losses against Mexican teams. La Máquina have won their last four at home, and if they defeat Vancouver it will be their longest home winning streak in the competition since winning eight straight between 2009 and 2010.
- Vancouver Whitecaps have come from behind to avoid defeat in each of their last three away matches in the Concacaf Champions Cup (W1 D2). The Whitecaps scored multiple goals in all three of those away matches, the second team in the modern era of the competition to score at least two away goals in the round of 16, quarter-final and semifinal of a single tournament (eventual champions Monterrey in 2021).
- No team has attempted more shots after a high recovery in the 2025 Concacaf Champions Cup than Cruz Azul, with 11. They have scored twice after high recoveries, tied with four other teams for the most in the competition.
- Brian White's five goals in this season's Concacaf Champions Cup are tied for second most behind Cruz Azul's Ángel Sepúlveda (7). White's five goals have come on 12 shots with a total expected goals value of 2.17 with his 2.83 xG outperformance the best in the competition this season.
